#Thread on Love Jih@d

It's very unfortunate to mention Love and Jih@d together. Love, one of the most beautiful & strong feeling coated by selflessness, is being deliberately used to fulfill the most brutal selfish purpose, jih@d.

The truth is that Jih@d includes war but it is not limited to it. Jih@d means any effort to promote izl@m.

Well, Love jih@d is not similar to interfaith marriage or love marriage. A universal love marriage can be between any man & woman, within the same faith or outside faiths.

But, love jih@d is a situation where a guy creates a fake identity to attract a girl of different religion, keep it a top secret until the relationship get serious and then forces her to change her religion.

When a man establishes relationship with a woman for conversion purposes, not only it is a breach of trust, but necessarily involves manipulation, and psychological, emotional and spiritual abuse of the woman and this is NOT love.

So called intellectuals call it a propaganda coined by hindu nationalist. So, let me tell you a brief history about it- According to the report of BBC-

"In 1924, a Muzlim bureaucrat in Kanpur was accused of "abducting & seducing" a Hindu girl and forcefully converting her.

A Hindu group demanded the "recovery" of the woman from the bureaucrat's house.

The abduction of Hindu women was even debated in parliament in colonial India. The Indian National Congress, now the main opposition party, passed a resolution saying that "women who have been abducted and forcibly married must be restored to their houses; mass conversions have no significance or validity and people must be given every opportunity to return to the life of their choice".

In 2012, the Congress chief minister of Kerala, Oommen Chandy, said that 2,667 young women of other faiths were converted to Izl@m, against which the number of young Mulzim women converted to other faiths was just 81.

The number of non-Mulzim women married into Islam is 33 times more than Mulzim women married outside Isl@m.

So may be the term “love jih@d” is coined recently but this mentality is older than the colonial India.

There have been allegations that there are foreign-funded Isl@mist organisations that support and promise money and other rewards to youth who lure non-Mulzim women into marriage and/or conversion.

On 10 feb 2016, In Gujarat, a whatsapp image (attached in the picture) got viral-

The Love Jih@d WhatsApp post is allegedly circulated by ‘Students of Mulzim Youth Forum’ and encourages Mulzim boys to trap girls from other communities in love & marry them. The post also carries the address from where the Muzlim youth, who successfully marries a girl from another religion, can collect their reward and 11 phone numbers to contact for assistance.

May be some will call it education came from the whatsapp university, for them I'm attaching a link of the video-

To make it worse, marriage between Mulzims and non-Mulzims seems one-way traffic, as ilzam bans Mulzim women marrying non-Muzlims and confines them within the religion. Evidence suggests the ban is followed in practice.

A study by the Pew Research Center, US, shows that while a high degree of Mulzims accept their sons marrying non-Mulzims, the reverse—their daughters marrying non-Mulzims—is least preferred or not preferred at all.

The reasons are obvious and comes directly from the ashmani kitab attached in the picture-
