

Twitter Thread by Milo M.

Milo M.

@Ex67T20

<https://t.co/5OmFX4bPRM>

Mitch McConnell's brother in law made a $26.8 million XPO Logistics purchase for his hedge fund—his fund's first ever XPO purchase—after DeJoy was unanimously elected Postmaster General by a board comprised of governors Mitch McConnell confirmed.

Remember last year, when Mitch McConnell's brother in law spent $26.8 million dollars on XPO Logistics stock for his hedge fund*after* former XPO CEO Louis DeJoy was elected Postmaster General by McConnell's USPS appointees?

His fund's XPO holdings are now worth $35.4 million. <https://t.co/SjRvJD9IR>

— Milo M. (@Ex67T20) March 20, 2021

@jacobbage <https://t.co/RGLCRLlqJ2>

In 2015, McConnell reported that his wife earned $50,001-$100,000 from her investment in said brother in law's Caymans-registered offshore fund. I think it's safe to say that they're familiar with the hedge fund.

<https://t.co/n7ESSxLbv>

On Mitch McConnell's 2015 financial disclosure, he stated that Elaine Chao earned $50,001-$100,000 from her $500,000-$1,000,000 stake in her brother in law's Caymans-registered hedge fund.

<pic.twitter.com/GlagRGgsPN>

— Milo M. (@Ex67T20) May 29, 2019

@jacobbage <https://t.co/6tGqGkntxC>

Probably just a coincidence.

While we wait for Trump's continued projection re: China, let's take a closer look at Mitch McConnell, Elaine Chao, Bank of China, and the appearance of systematic illegal insider trading and good old fashioned grift.

(1) <https://t.co/gtYX0iitUM>

— Milo M. (@Ex67T20) October 22, 2020