Secular scam in the name of Raksha Bandhan

In childhood, we have been taught in our curriculum that on the festival of Rakshabandhan, sisters tie rakhi to their brother and wish him long life. The most popular example of Raksha Bandhan is... given to Queen Karnavati of Chittor and Humayun, the Mughal emperor. It is said that when the ruler of Gujarat, Bahadur Shah attacked Chittor, then Queen Karnavati of Chittor wrote a letter to the Mughal emperor Humayun requesting his help.

Along with the letter, the queen had sent Rakhi as her brother. Humayun came to protect the queen but by then it was too late. Rani committed suicide by committing Jauhar. This history is taught on the basis of Hindu-Muslim unity.

Now know the reality and know the secular scam.

The history of our country is written by secular historians. Maulana Abdul Kalam was the first education minister of India. Those whom the wicked Nehru, the patron of communist ideology and the exclusive opponent of Hindu ideology had given strict instructions that whatever history should be included in the curriculum. He did some atrocities on him and the foolish Maulana, following the advice of Nehru, not only hid the truth but also distorted it completely. @Lost\_History1

The same atrocity happened with the story of Rani Karnavati and the Mughal emperor Humayun. When the queen came to know that Bahadur Shah was about to attack her, she wrote a letter to Humayun. But Bahadur Khan came to know about the letter being written to Humayun. @desh\_bhkt

Bahadur Khan wrote a letter to Humayun pleading for Islam and prevented him from helping an infidel.

In Mirat-e-Sikandari, it is written on page number 382 from the subject of Gujarat-

Sultan's letter had a bad effect on Humayun. He had left for Chittor from Agra. He had just reached Gwalior. He thought, "The Sultan is going to attack Chittor. If I help Chittor, I will in a way help an infidel. @BharathiyaPsra

According to Islam, it is haram to help a kafir. So it is best to delay." Thinking Humayun stayed in Gwalior and did not move forward.

Here when Bahadur Shah besieged Chittor. The queen faced him bravely. There was no trace of Humayun.

In the end it was decided to commit Jauhar. The gates of the fort were opened. Wearing saffron robes the men went off to battle. From behind the Rajput women jumped into the fire of Jauhar. Queen Karnavati along with 13000 women jumped into Jauhar. @vijaygajera

3000 small children were thrown into the well and the ditch. So that they do not fall into the hands of Muslims. Altogether 32000 innocent people lost their lives. Bahadur Shah went back after looting the fort. Humayun came to Chittor.

But came after a full year. But why did he come ? came to collect his annual rent. Note that this is Humayun when Sher Shah was wandering through the dust of the desert in fear of Suri. Then the Hindu Rajput Rana of Umarnkot Sindh gave shelter to Humayun. @Sanatan\_Science

This is where Akbar was born in Umarnkot. Taking shelter of a Kafir, Humayun never remembered Islam. And woe to such a Rana who gave shelter to Humayun, who had betrayed his Hindu Rajput princely state of Chittor. If Humayun would have died in this desert. @hathyogi31

So the Mughals from India would have ended only then. Later on, Hindus would have to bear the atrocities from Akbar to Aurangzeb.

Writers like Irfan Habib, Ramchandra Guha, Romila Thapar not only distorted history but also raped it completely. The treachery done by Humayun in the name of Islam was given the name of Hindu-Muslim brotherhood and Rakshabandhan.

Hindu children were so confused by teaching in our curriculum that they never knew the truth. That is why today the children of Hindus go to Delhi to visit Humayun's Tomb. Where the guides tell him Humayun as a symbol of Hindu-Muslim brotherhood. @The\_Pinakee
