

Twitter Thread by Subhadip Nandy

Subhadip Nandy

@SubhadipNandy16

A few observations after 1.5 months of launching the "Decoding Volume & OI" course. I will be speaking bluntly as usual. General observations, so kindly do not take it personally

Almost zero questions or discussions about historical high OIs, depressed OIs, volume blowoffs or the volume oscillator
Majority looking at the VolXplosion list and expecting magical trades

Ma and @gautam\_icma have spent 10+ years with these concepts. So unless one understands, assimilates and watches the concepts on the charts on a regular basis, it would be IMPOSSIBLE for anyone to predict direction or quantum of move

As a result, one will get disheartened after a few months and move on to something new, looking for the proverbial next "holy grail"

THERE IS NO HOLY GRAIL IN THE MARKETS

Trading is not simple as  $2+2=4$ .

We have taught the concepts to the best of our abilities, we did not hold anything back. Now it's upon the user how much he practices the concepts and improves

One should pick up a maximum of 5 stocks and keep watching the OI changes, volume action etc for 3-6 months analysing each and every day. Only then one can expect the nuances to reveal themselves and one can gain mastery on the concepts.

#there_is_no_shortcut

----rant ends ---

This is the volume oscillator on Nifty fut. The huge moves on Thursday and the smaller move on Friday was absolutely not supported by the volume osc, this was a fakeout . We received ZERO questions on this

All of you who have bought the course are traders and ADULTS. This is not a KG class where a teacher will give you homework and explain the lessons over days, weeks and months.

GROW UP or GO HOME

"The best teachers are those who show you where to look, but don't tell you what to see."

