(and no, I've never posted a tweet like this before.)

What times we are in. And how few understand or grasp the utter profundity of the moment.

2) Yet despite how it's looking from this current perspective, and after some turbulent months ahead (likely an understatement), the dawning of a true planetary renaissance WILL become apparent to even the most at-present comatose sleeper.

3) The evil is being uprooted and is being defeated.

That is my conviction as has been since April 2020.

About eight months ago I took a whole new look at Président ■■■mp and what he has been doing – and re-orientated what I thought my opinion of him was.

4) When he first entered the p■■esidency, I had looked at and heard about his tweets, and thought, “Gosh. Can you believe it. This is the P■■siden■ of the United Státés. How very unstatesmanlike to be tweeting stuff like this”.

5) But about eight months ago, I thought, “Why has every single article that has been written about him in the British media since he started running for office been – without exception – negative, negative, negative?”.

6) And on closer examination of his actual deeds, I felt rather foolish for having been taken in somewhat by the poison spewed about him by the media.

7) In April I was made aware of the Quéúé posts. It was a friend in the USA who first brought them to my attention.
