So the concept of relative strength will tell you in advance before a breakout about the accumulation by smart hands. The RS will go up before the breakout and the stock will be near to the highs. Near to the highs is only what I am interested in. No bottom fishing.

Some went into the watchlist and some were actionable where my few long positions are already open.

What am I looking at in the charts? Flat base formation breakouts/Pullbacks/Trendline support. Keep it simple. Ex attached.
