

Twitter Thread by tolu ogunlesi

tolu ogunlesi

@toluogunlesi

Heartwarming news of the successful separation of conjoined female twins at the University of Ilorin Teaching Hospital (UIH), yesterday.

Can anyone pls confirm that these photos circulating on social media are from that surgery?

Part of why this is even more exciting is that the 1st time UITH attempted a separation of conjoined twins, fifteen years ago, the babies sadly died, after 14 hours. So it's really gladdening to see that UITH haven't given up, and that the 'class of 2020' are alive & doing well.

Nigeria: Uith Conjoined Twins Die

This Day (Lagos)

26 AUGUST 2005

By Tunde Sanni

Ilorin — The medical feat performed by doctors of University of Ilorin Teaching Hospital on Wednesday on the separation of conjoined twins suffered a tragic blow yesterday as the twins died.

Consequently, the joy of their Kogi-born mother, Mrs. Busayo Komolafe, to head back to her Egbe country home with the babies was being aborted.